

ABSTRACT

A process for producing yarns that have enhanced resistance to unraveling and linting, wherein the yarns are moved along guides through a needle loom where a series of needles engage the yarns. This engagement of the yarns by the needles causes the fibers of the yarns to become intermixed.